Upcoming Conferences

Distant and Neglected Voices: Women in the History of Linguistics

London, UK (29-29 June 2016)

The role played by women in the history of linguistics has not yet received the scholarly attention it deserves, despite current interest in linguistic historiography and questions of language and gender. This conference will consider the contribution of women as linguists in different linguistic and cultural contexts, both European and non-European. The focus will be particularly on the period 1500 until the institutionalisation of linguistics as a discipline in the twentieth century. The term 'linguist' will be understood broadly, to include contributions offered to the discipline and the study of language structure and function outside more institutionalised and traditional frameworks.

Registration fee: For this two-day conference, a registration fee of £80 is payable in advance at the time of booking.

Convenors: Dr Helena Sanson, University of Cambridge, and Professor Wendy Ayres-Bennett, University of Cambridge

Venue: The Royal Society, 6-9 Carlton House Terrace, London, SW1Y 5AG

Bloomington, Indiana (12-15 July 2016)

The 8th International Conference on Historical Lexicography and Lexicology will be held on the beautiful Bloomington campus of Indiana University, and will include presentations on topics relevant to historical lexicography and lexicology, including on the conference's theme, CHRONOLOGY AND HISTORICAL LEXICOGRAPHY AND LEXICOLOGY. Papers on problems attending dates and dating, periods and periodizing, and the theories of history underlying work in historical lexicography and lexicology will be featured, along with papers that consider historical lexicography of the new digital world, papers that begin with the question, "How is chronology reconceived in the era of digitally driven lexical research and lexicographical structure, design, and display?" We will have four plenary lectures from four outstanding specialists on these themes: FRED R. SHAPIRO (Yale University, dates and dating), ANNE CURZAN (University of Michigan, periods and periodizing), MIRA PODHAJECKA (University of Opole, theories of history), and SARAH OGILVIE (Stanford University, digital chronologies).

The deadline for abstracts was 1 February, and decisions about acceptance were to have been made by the middle of February. Additional questions may be directed to: info@ichll8.com

Paris, France (28 August--1 September 2017)

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Fourteenth International Conference on the History of the Language Sciences, ICHoLS XIV, will be held from August 28 to September 1, 2017 in Paris.

Since 1978, ICHoLS conferences have brought together specialists in the discipline every three years. Previous conferences have been held in Ottawa, Lille, Princeton, Trier, Galway, Washington, Oxford, Fontenay-St Cloud (Paris), São Paulo & Campinas, Urbana-Champaign, Potsdam (2008), St Petersburg (2011), and Vila Real (2014).
